Website Creation Project

At the beginning of this, the process was quite easy. I had a few family recipes to choose from but ended up choosing the one that reminded me of my home the most. The first issue I honestly ran into was the photos, as the combination of the meal and apartment lighting made everything extremely yellow. I took it into Lightroom and tried to edit and ended up putting some grayscale onto them to counteract it. I wanted something clean and friendly as this is how I perceived this meal to be. I did use the grid heavily with my sketches/final design, but I think what I learned from that is it's okay to break it (intentionally) sometimes! I did have a lot of trouble with just formatting my text. Whether that be stacking them, overlapping, they seemed to not go where I wanted. I used W3 schools as my first resource, but then ended up asking you as some of that stuff went over my head. The video tutorial you provided helped EXTTRMELY, and I ended up getting everything laid out how I wanted! I also ended up scrolling through W3 schools again to see what final flourishes I could add.
